YOU WILL BE FISHING ONE DAY AT COW CREEK RANCH AND ONE DAY AT THE BAR X BAR RANCH

COW CREEK RANCH: Cow Creek Ranch has an incredibly productive trout stream (Cow Creek itself) that meanders for 3.5 miles through an alpine valley along with seven high mountain lakes - both the stream and the lakes offer anglers some of the largest trout and finest fly fishing to be had anywhere in the West. Cow Creek has been professionally enhanced to provide dozens of pools that support trout averaging 16 to 20+ inches in length. The lower section of the stream produces mostly larger browns and rainbow and the upper stretch has a good population of brook trout and some pure strain Rio Grande Cutthroats; how about a northern New Mexico trout "grand slam"? The lakes allow and angler to target some truly giant trout, often with the opportunity to site cast to these brutes with dry flies. The rich aquatic insect base in the both the stream and the lakes keep the fish fat and healthy. As well, the ranch carefully monitors the number of anglers that fish on the property throughout the season so that the trout are never overly pressured or stressed. Located at 8,500 feet and surrounded by National Forest land at the edge of the Pecos Wilderness, Cow Creek Ranch is amazingly wild but still only a little over an hour drive from Santa Fe.

BAR X BAR RANCH: The Bar X Bar, a 5,000 acre private ranch about a 20 minute drive from Cow Creek Ranch, offers anglers incredible fishing in a beautiful high alpine setting, with lots of wildlife to be seen as an added bonus. There are five small lakes situated throughout the length of the 600 acre Manzanares Valley. Because these lakes are in the valley's meadows, access is easy and they are full of large rainbow and brown trout. Along with the five lakes, the Bar X Bar has one mile of private water on Cow Creek and private access to Cow Creek Falls and the box canyon section of the stream. This section of Cow Creek has some of the best of small stream, wild trout fishing in northern New Mexico. Lunkers in the lakes or wild fish in Cow Creek - the Bar X Bar Ranch offers the best of two completely different types of fly fishing waters.
